Hong Kong Customs detects largest sea smuggling case this year with market value reaching $300 million

Hong Kong Customs on October 26 [2022] detected a suspected case of using an ocean-going vessel to smuggle goods to the Mainland at the Kwai Chung Container Terminals. A large batch of suspected smuggled goods, including expensive food ingredients, table wines, electronic goods, solid waste and scheduled endangered species, with a total estimated market value of about $300 million was seized. This is the largest sea smuggling case detected by Customs this year in terms of the seizure value.

Through risk assessment, Customs discovered that criminals may use ocean-going vessels to smuggle goods to the Mainland and then formulated strategic plans. Ten containers, declared as carrying acrylic boards, prepared to be shipped to Tianjin via an ocean-going vessel were speedily identified at the Kwai Chung Container Terminals.

Upon inspection, Customs officers found inside the 10 containers a lot of wooden boxes, which were used to conceal a large batch of suspected smuggled goods. Among them, the quantity of ginseng and dried seafood was the largest, including dried fish maws, dried sea cucumbers, dried shark fins, dried scallops and suspected dried Gekko gecko, totalling about 50 tonnes. Other goods included about 30 000 bottles of table wines, about 30 tonnes of solid waste, electronic goods, cosmetics, beauty needles and scheduled endangered species.

After a follow-up investigation, Customs officers raided a warehouse in Yuen Long on October 28 [2022] and arrested two persons suspected to be connected with the case. They comprised a 48-year-old male person-in-charge and a 53-year-old female staff member of a logistics company. The 10 containers involved were also detained.

An investigation is ongoing. The two arrested persons have been released on bail pending further investigation and the likelihood of further arrests is not ruled out.
